

Hope Breaks Jinx 12 Years Long to Defeat Prescott

Lateral Pass, Harrell to Pritchett to Wray, Paves Way to Victory

WIN BY 7-0 SCORE

Victory Comes After 3 Quarters of Scoreless Football

Twelve years of football defeat was avenged Armistice day at Prescott when Hope High School beat the Curly Wolves on their own field 7 to 0.

It was a great and glorious victory for the Bobcats—their first against Prescott since Courtney White led a fighting Hope team to triumph in 1918.

The feelings of the 3,000 fans who crowded the Prescott field yesterday were revealed when Hope, after three quarters of hopelessly scoreless football, scored the ball across early in the final period. "Touchdown" was the magic word that set off an explosion of applause and a wild scramble for missing hats on the Hope side of the field.

Prescott Full of Fight
Prescott never quit trying. The Curly Wolves came right back in the same quarter with a drive that carried the ball deep into Hope territory and produced a panic of cheering in the Prescott stands. But the drive wilted; Hope took the ball, and was marching to another touchdown when the final whistle sounded.

It was a great victory, because it crowned the efforts of two teams playing their best game of the season. Prescott had been advertised as having one of the weakest eleven of its career, with new and young players—but they played an inspired game against Hope. Likewise, the Bobcats were meeting an opponent they had rather beat than with the state championship.

For three quarters it was a game of alternating offense and defense. Hope carried the ball to Prescott's 3-yard line in the first quarter, only to lose it on downs. In the second quarter, Prescott short-passed the pigskin to Hope's yard line, but the buckles failed, and the half ended scoreless. Prescott held the ball, and the game went into the final period without a score.

Hope's Triple Pass
In the fourth quarter Hope uncoiled a series of passes and runs which penetrated Prescott's defense and put the game on ice. Lynn Harrell threw a pass to Pritchett, who made 15 yards. A moment later Harrell tossed another one to Pritchett, who passed it laterally to Bill Wray—and Wray got away for 30 yards, advancing the ball to Prescott's 12-yard line.

Harrell threw a third one, which bounced out of the hands of Jones, Prescott quarterback, and was taken by Mauldin, Hope end, who reached the 2-yard line. Harrell then drove through the center of the line for a touchdown. Bacon bucked through the line for the extra point, and the score was Hope 7, Prescott 0.

The most dazzling play of the game was that triple pass from Harrell to Pritchett to Wray. It is a play that Hope has tried often, but seldom succeeded in. It worked the one time it was absolutely needed—and put Bill Wray far out of the end with the field almost clear. It was the play that won the game for Hope.

All Prescott was watching Hope's highly-advertised fullback Lynn Harrell. The Curly Wolves had him spotted from the opening moment of the game. But Hope countered by keeping Harrell under wraps during the first half and using Wray, their brilliant little quarterback. Bill Wray played the greatest game of his career, A Great Team

The entire Hope team was on its toes, satisfying Coach Wilkins' prediction that this year's Bobcats would win the great majority of their games and "would beat Prescott," the nemesis for local football talent.

The trick was turned by a perfectly functioning eleven, in which Harrell and Wray shone brightly on the offense, with Reeves and Wray starring in defense.

Hope earned eight first downs, against seven for Prescott—a very fair indication of the strength of the two teams.

Perdue, Prescott Star
For Prescott, Perdue, halfback, played a wonderful game. This 16-year-old youngster, in his first season, shows tremendous speed and courage. He was the heart of the Curly Wolves, whether on the attack or defensive. Perdue will shine for Prescott the next two or three years, Hope fans agree.

The Lineup:

Groove had gone without food and water since Saturday afternoon when the schooner cracked up. He said he was unconscious some of the time he was clinging to the wreckage, but managed to hold on.

The schooner foundered in a storm off the bar and until the mate was found, it was supposed all aboard had perished.

Soviet Charges of International War Plotting Is Bared

Eight Held For Alleged Conspiracy Against Stalin Regime

CONFESSION CLAIMED
Statesmen of Half Dozen Nations Implicated in Admission

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Nov. 12.—(AP)—What is described as the most ambitious plot yet uncovered for the overthrow of the Soviet government was outlined Tuesday with the publication of a sweeping indictment charging eight anti-Soviet leaders with conspiring to overthrow the Stalin regime.

Lawrence of Arabia, that glamorous figure who appears on the British army rolls as "Alchafsthan Shaw," and the outstanding statesmen—financiers of half a dozen nations were named as having aided and financed the movement.

Poincare and Briand of France, Sir Henri Deterling, British oil magnate, Lord Churchill of England, and prominent figures in Poland, Rumania, and Finland were named as co-conspirators.

The counter-revolutionist leader Ramsin is alleged to have been the prime mover in the plot. His associates, three of them educators and the others engineers, are charged with having formed a central committee of the so-called industrial party in the interests of the intrigue.

Ramsin is charged with the alleged Russian leaders, who will be tried on charges of high treason for which the punishment is death, are alleged to have implicated more than 200 others in confessions of their parts in the plot.

The indictment charges that they have been working for several years to disorganize industry foment discontent among the people and otherwise to prepare way for a counter-revolution. Actual military force was to have been applied last summer the indictment reads, but because of difficulties between France and Italy and because of the uncertainty of German support, this move was postponed to 1931.

The alleged confessions were said to name Poincare and Briand as the leading supporters of the plot abroad. The indictment charges that the scheme was controlled from Paris where financial arrangements and espionage were directed by a "trade industrial committee" composed of exiled Russian financiers who were said to have received a million gold rubles for their cause in the past year through persons named in the indictment as "certain high officials of a certain French institution in Moscow."

The "only French institution" in Moscow is the French embassy. The alleged confessions refer to officials of the "institution" only by initials such as "A," "M," and "R." These officials, the indictment charges, formed an active liaison between the committee in Paris and the leaders of the plot in Moscow.

Plot Details Disclosed
In the confession which Ramsin was said to have made, details of the plot were disclosed.

There was to have been an "incident" on the Rumanian border, as a result of which Rumania was to have declared war. Her ally, Poland, also was to have declared war and other countries were to follow their example.

The French were to provide supplies of arms and ammunition, and Great Britain was to send her fleet into the Black sea and the Baltic, taking over the Crimean and Leningrad while an army of 600,000 led by the former Russian General Loukomskey, would march on Moscow.

The plotters, it was said, figured that the army would number 1,000,000 men through rapid enlistment of discontented peasants on the advance toward Moscow.

The new government, according to the confession, was virtually chosen in advance. Ramsin, or Mikulov, a former minister in the Gersensky government, was to be premier of a "bourgeois democratic republic."

The White Russian General Denikin or Lukomsky was to be minister of war, and table, the Russian academician, foreign minister.

In return for her assistance, the confession said, Britain was to receive control of the Caucasian oil fields and other valuable concessions were to have been distributed among France and other nations.

Birthday Party Ends In Arrest

$50,000 Weekly Alleged to Have Been Taken in By Narcotic Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—John Collins, celebrated his 28th birthday last night. Federal officers gave him the surprise party of his life.

Several months have been spent by the officers in trying to win his good graces. Little headway was made in convincing who were linked with him in a narcotic ring, which they were sure he headed.

An idea of giving him a birthday party was conceived and he was bade to bring all his friends. This was done in order to find out who his friends were. The trick worked.

Today Collins, his wife and fifteen of the more than seventy guests who were at the party are under arrest. They are held as alleged participants of a narcotic ring having an income of more than $50,000 a week.

This raid was timed with others taking place in Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Syracuse.

When the city detectives sprang their traps at the party, the guests offered no resistance. Collins was named as the leader.

Jackson was shot in the heart and in the arm. He died almost instantly. Camp was struck by four bullets. The money obtained by the pair was all recovered.

City Celebrates 100 Per Cent on Armistice Holiday

118 Hope Business Houses Were Closed on Tuesday

SPEECH IN SAENGER
Dr. L. J. Kosminsky Makes Address Memorializing the Day

Hope business men responded with the finest showing of co-operation in the history of the city, when they closed their doors at 11 a. m. Armistice day, according to Dr. L. J. Kosminsky, commander of the local American Legion post.

With the support of the civic clubs the Legion had fostered this method of observance of the day. One hundred and eighteen business houses had signed the petition to close. It was reported that every business house in the city complied with the request.

Ten Legionnaires are to feast upon a banquet of beans across the table from 10 other Legionnaires who will eat a chicken dinner. This festive affair at the Chickadee Cafe at 7:00 p. m. is the culmination of a drive for new members. The losing team, captained by William Ramsey, brought in a total of 50 members. The team headed by B. C. Hollis brought in 10 members, winning the chicken dinner. This brings the total membership to 127 for the new Legion year, which started last month. Last year, the former record breaker, the local post ended with a total of 118 members.

Kosminsky Speaks

Dr. L. J. Kosminsky, of Texarkana, former state commander of the Arkansas department American Legion, made a stirring patriotic speech at the Saenger Theatre Tuesday night. This was part of a program which had been arranged by the local Legion post.

"Twelve years ago," said Dr. Kosminsky, "the worst war in the history of the world was ended. At 11:11 a. m. the carnage ceased and unnumbered millions settled over the vast wasteland. Slowly and sadly the nations returned to their homes. The wounds of mind and body. Those who went to hospitals to remain until death ended their agony."

"It is twelve years ago," he said, "that we veterans suffering, but the marks of the conflict may be seen in the faces and bodies of the children, some of whom were orphaned since, and some who now realize that their fathers have met a worst fate than death—insanity. Everyone knows that humanity will not recover from the catastrophe for many decades, possibly centuries."

"What should this mean," he said, "to those who served and survived and to those who were saved by the sacrifice. Why Armistice Day is one of only two world days, the other being Christmas. It is a memorial day to commemorate those who lost their lives in the cause; it is the anniversary of Independence won from Kaiseristic militarism; it is a Thanksgiving day when fervent thanks should be given to God that victory came to the side of the right. This day should move us more than any other on consecration and dedication to higher and finer and nobler service to God to country, and to humanity."

Better Outlook For The South Is Seen

Improved Farm Products Market Is Forecast at Agricultural Meet

ATLANTA, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The domestic demand for next year's farm products in the south is likely to show an improvement, economists of the United States Department of Agriculture and state extension forces said today. They also said the credit outlook for the Southern farmers appears less favorable than a year ago.

The economists, who also represent the Federal Farm Board, are meeting in an outlook conference, the first of its kind ever held outside of Washington.

Concerning demand for Southern agricultural products, the conference adopted a committee report which said the domestic demand would likely improve next year, and be better toward the close of the year than at the beginning.

An improvement during 1931 in foreign economic conditions and the foreign demand for Southern products also was forecast by the economists.

The conference based its predictions on the fact that "industrial activity already has fallen about as low as in former major depressions, and the period of decline has approximately the same duration as in other major depressions."

As to the commodity price decline the report said, "The low levels of raw material prices may be expected to stimulate among consumers of those raw materials."

The reduction in agricultural income has in creased the demand of farmers for credit, the Credit Committee's report said.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her mother, Mrs. Mitchell, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced. Mrs. Mitchell is a widow following a second marriage.

HARRY MITCHELL, young son of the late Mitchell, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce him to his father and she soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging her to elope with her father.

CELIA MITCHELL, who is a widow following a second marriage, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce him to his father and she soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging her to elope with her father.

Mitchell has forbidden his daughter to see Jordan. Sheilda comes to New York to work for a photographer service and meets Celia. She tells him she cares for Jordan but later realizes it is Shilda who she loves. Mitchell goes to Mitchell and tells him the girl has been meeting Shilda surreptitiously. Father and daughter quarrel and Celia leaves for Baltimore. Her mother is not there and all eleven children are left alone. Mitchell arrives. He and Celia become reconciled and return to New York after his homecoming. Mitchell invites Shilda to dinner and tells her Celia is going to a marriage and encounter with Jordan. All three are together when the father returns. Celia leaves the others to talk to Shilda. The interview ends with the understanding that all is between them. That evening Mrs. Parsons announces to Celia that Mitchell has asked her to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER LIII

"YOU mean—" Celia began and then she stopped. From the expression of Evelyn Parsons' face there was no doubt that what the woman had said was true.

Mrs. Parsons laughed and the sound was strident. "I mean just what I said," Evelyn continued. "Your father has asked me to be his wife—and I have accepted. I must say I'm disappointed, Celia. You don't look very pleased!"

The girl was staring at her. For a moment she said nothing. Then she leaned forward eyeing Evelyn appealingly and the words burst forth:

"But I thought—I mean when mother comes back—oh, Evelyn, it wouldn't be right! You wouldn't do such a thing! Mother loves him still. I know she does!"

Evelyn Parsons' shoulders straightened. "So you disapprove!" she said coldly. "Really, my dear, I think it would have been more polite if you concealed your feelings. After all, your father and I are both grown adults able to think for ourselves. I had no idea you disliked me so much!"

"Oh, it isn't that! Of course I don't dislike you. Please don't think me ungrateful for all you've done! But don't you see what they both mean to me? Mother—"

"There is no need for you to say any more. And I shall tell you frankly that if your mother were in this very room tonight begging me to give him up it would not alter my plans in the slightest. Do you think I'd let your father make a fool of himself over that woman a second time? Do you think I have no feelings? No rights? Why do you cling to this ridiculous notion that your father and mother, separated when you were a child, would be any happier together now? I tell you it's preposterous. They made one mistake, discovered it and parted. Do you think you could possibly bring them together again? No!"

Mrs. Parsons' eyes flashed. Anger had gotten the better of her usual suavity. The exhibition of temper held Celia spellbound.

"John and I love each other," Evelyn went on. "It will be useless for you to attempt to interfere. John's been devoted to me for years. Really, Celia, I should think you'd consider his happiness even if you do dislike me!"

"You mustn't say that, Evelyn. I do like you. It's just that it's such a surprise. I was startled."

"BUT why should you be surprised? Surely you must have known he was fond of me. Why, I've been putting him off for months! I had to respect Dwight's memory but it's a year since he left me—or practically a year. John and Dwight were such friends. That's one reason I feel the hand of fate is guiding me. Of course it will be some time before the engagement can even be announced. You must promise me, Celia, not to speak of it!"

"I won't tell anyone," Celia agreed.

"It would mortify me frightfully if the news got out. Of course I felt that you should know at once."

"I'm glad you told me," the girl said slowly. "I suppose it changes everything, doesn't it?"

"Well, in some ways. In the first place I shall insist that John must stop killing himself in that office. He's made himself a slave and it's because there's been no one to guard his health and make him take time for recreation. I'm planning six months abroad immediately after we're married. The Orient would be a wonderful change for him, don't you think so? I'm sure it would do him good. And everything will work out nicely because you can stay with your grandmother. I'm sure you'd prefer to be in town anyhow and when we're here we'll probably spend most of our time at Larchwood. Really, I think it's only fair to you. You'll develop so much more without having to depend upon."

Celia was silent.

Mrs. Parsons had recovered her composure. After a moment she said softly: "Celia, you're going to wish you happiness, aren't you? Remember, you're going to be marrying one of these days yourself."

"I wish you—every happiness."

The girl rose and walked to the window which faced westward. She could stand there with her back toward Evelyn pretending to look out at the night until she forced the tears back. There were great hot drops on her cheek. Celia brushed them aside casually. Then she turned.

"I didn't make plans for the evening," Mrs. Parsons said, glancing up, "because I thought it would mean a great deal to both of us to keep it uninterrupted. It makes me happy to know you're looking at the situation unselfishly."

The dart found its target.

"I suppose I have been selfish," Celia admitted, "but I didn't mean to be! I must see father tomorrow and congratulate him."

Evelyn started. "Oh, no! Promise me you won't do that," she exclaimed. "You see, dear, I have a confession. Your father wanted to be the first to tell you the news. I agreed but afterward when he said he didn't want you to know until just before the announcement was made public I felt he was wrong. That's why I made up my mind to tell you myself. Of course you can't blame John! He doesn't understand how a girl would feel about such a thing."

"Oh, I see."

THE quick glance of Evelyn Parsons was apprehensive. "You are glad I told you, aren't you?" she asked.

"Of course."

"I was sure of it. It's just the sort of thing you couldn't expect a man to understand. And when he tells you himself you won't let him dream you suspected, will you?"

"Well, I'll do the best I can to keep him from guessing."

"That's a dear girl. You see, you and I must stand together. And we're going to! Give me your word, Celia, that you won't mention anything I've said to your father."

"Word of honor."

Evelyn heaved a little sigh and smiled. "I wonder what I did with that book on contract bridge that Pammy loaned me," she said after a moment. "Have you seen it anywhere?"

Celia shook her head. "I'll help you look," she offered.

She did not prove useful in the search. Mrs. Parsons found the volume without assistance and settled down with it before a reading lamp. Celia closed a magazine and curled up on the divanport. She opened the pages and looked down at them but the lines of type might have been invisible. She neither read nor saw them. Her hands were icy and Celia clenched them together. The pain in her heart had begun again.

Everything was lost. Everything in the world that she cared about was gone. With Barney beside her Celia felt she could have faced her father's remarriage, even though it severed ties from Margaret Rogers. Now—what was there left?

She Will Marry Cox's Son

Miss Helen Rumsey, of New York, shown here, is soon to become the bride of James M. Cox Jr., son of the 1920 Democratic nominee for the presidency. The wedding will take place Nov. 21 in New York.

Famed March of '94 Recalled By Visit

Coxey, Aged "General" Still Battles For Army of Unemployed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The recent visit of "General" Jacob S. Coxey Sr., to Washington recalled the eventful march of unemployed led by Coxey to the capital in 1894.

Starting from Massillon, Ohio, in March 1894, Coxey led an army of men to Washington to protest against employment conditions. Coxey was the author of a law—the Coxey law—providing that $500,000 in irredeemable paper money should be issued and that this sum should be spent in improving public highways throughout the country.

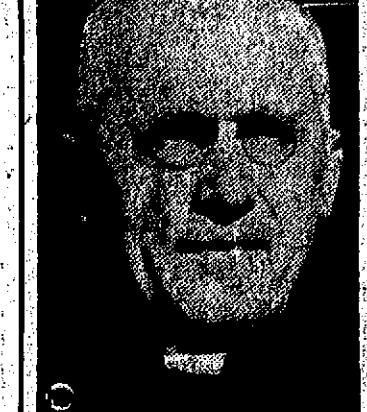

Army Reduced.

The army, reduced to about 300, arrived in Washington on April 23, and on May 1 advanced into the capital grounds. Public interest in the venture had waned. No notice was taken of Coxey's army until the "general" and some of his "lieutenants" were arrested for walking on the lawns of the capital.

The march, which some foreigners regarded as a menace to the country, was terminated in a short term sentence for Coxey for violating a city ordinance.

In conference with Secretary of Commerce Landon, a short time ago, in which he presented a new plan to relieve unemployment, Coxey still showed his old vigor and fire. He proposed setting up of an 18-month moratorium and payment of $100 a month to all unemployed adults.

New "Calling Card."

While in Washington, the famous "general" presented friends with a "calling card," upon which was written the main points and advantages of the Coxey non-interest bond bill, now before the House Ways and Means committee. Its purpose is to "bring about perpetual prosperity by setting 6,000,000 unemployed to work on work on public works."

Coxey explains that non-interest bearing 25-year bonds will enable the people to have what they need now.

Cavalry Shows Big Decrease In U. S.

Most of Army's Cavalry Is Stationed in West, Along Mexican Border

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Those gallant armed horsemen who are pictured so romantically in the nation's history are growing fewer year by year, the annual report of Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, Chief of Army Cavalry, revealed today.

Whereas America's cavalry strength in 1920 was 20,000 enlisted men, the present actual recruiting strength is only 7,974, the report said. This represents a reduction of 58 per cent in a decade.

Most of the Army's cavalry now is stationed in the mid-west and on the Mexican border, where Henry said, it is being maintained in a "very high state of efficiency." Training, in riding and improved care of animals, have shown results in a number of marches where a rate of seven miles per hour has been maintained for 40 miles.

Meanwhile, steeds of steel are coming to reinforce horses in modern cavalry organizations. During the last fiscal year the War Department has approved expenditure of $20,000 for experiments to find a satisfactory type of armored car for the cavalry.

All of the cars carry machine guns, or machine rifles for use against aircraft in addition to their principal batteries.

Nets Might Save Bridge Jumpers

Thirty-Second Attempt Has Been Made to Commit Suicide

PASADENA, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Police are pondering a plan to install catch nets on each side of the Colorado Street bridge here as a deterrant to would-be suicides, following the 32nd attempt at self-destruction here recently.

The bridge is 150 feet above the rocky gorge of the Arroyo Seco, at its highest point, and in all but a few cases, the jumpers have gone to an instant death.

Hardly a week goes by that traffic officers do not spend hectic hours untangling traffic which has become tied up when motorists have thought they saw someone leap from the railing.

Mrs. Margaret White, 64, was the 32nd would-be suicide, but she dropped only 25 feet into heavy underbrush and received no injury except a broken ankle.

The only comparable instance in which someone has survived the bridge leap occurred two years ago, when a young man, who was pausing in the topmost branches to quiet his pounding heart, he climbed down to safety.

Where Scores Died In Ohio Mine Blast

Heroic efforts of rescue workers failed to save the lives of scores of men trapped in the shaft of Sunday Creek Coal Mine No. 6 at Millfield, Ohio, when a terrific explosion swept through the mine galleries. Among the bodies were brought to the surface was that of W. E. Tytus (inset), president of the company, who was inspecting the mine when the blast occurred. The upper picture shows the scene at the mouth of the mine, with ambulances waiting; below, a general view of the mine.

World's Tallest Shames Myth-Makers

This unusual view of the new Empire State building in New York shows the entire structure. It will be the world's tallest building when the observation mast is added.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mythological marvels are kid stuff compared with the building of a modern skyscraper. A team of 20,000 business men, stone masons and office boys will swarm the layers around these pillars.

Building 3,500 men and the equivalent of 4,000 horses to put together the Empire State building, which is to be the world's tallest structure.

The stupendous bulk makes the builders' but human ants crawling through the 85 floors.

Twenty elevators, 10 for passengers, the other material hoists carry them to their jobs.

Temporary equipment provides power, water and light to supply the small city.

And the building, after it is opened next May, will house a workaday populace of 20,000 tenants and possibly 20,000 daily visitors.

By overtime work, the steel ribs have been placed and only the 200-foot mast remains to be raised to bring the building to its final height of 1,248 feet.

There will be 62 elevators, including one in the mooring mast.

Now the visitor is lifted in a temporary elevator to the 34th floor, where he climbs upward.

At the top he stands over 58,000 tons of steel, 204,000 cubic feet of limestone, 300 tons of chrome steel trimmings and 300 tons of cast aluminum moldings, some of which is just being riveted to the outside of the building, completing the outer shell.

As he stands on the 76th floor there are no walls to obstruct his view. He sees the downtown financial section, viewing the bay like a gigantic ship's prow. In this perspective the Statue of Liberty sticks up like a lighthouse.

The bridge is like a watch spring over the East river.

The World's Tallest Building In Capsule

The Empire State building will have: Eighty-five stories tall (1,248 feet) with a 200 foot observatory mast, making it 1,248 feet high. Space for 20,000 tenants, 20,000 visitors.

Sixty-two main elevators. Thirty-seven million cubic feet. Rentable, 2,158,000 square feet.

Exterior, limestone, granite, stripped with metal. Steel frame weighing 46,000 tons. Columns supporting 10,000,000 pounds each.

Site of 83,360 square feet. Total cost (land and building) $55,000,000.

The mass of buildings below is like a packed forest of jagged stumps, out of which the giant's nearest rival, the Chrysler building, impudently points a silver spire like an inverted, glistening icicle.

Below the 54th floor rooms have taken shape, floors are being finished and plate is on the walls.

Wrecking of the old Waldorf-Astoria, which the Empire State building supplants at Fifth avenue and 34th street, began September 20, 1929.

The first steel columns of its successor were set in place last April 3. By next May 1, under the contractors' promise, the tenants are to begin moving in.

They will find a gross floor area of approximately 84 acres over the two-acre site. The weight on the steel frame, itself weighing 46,000 tons, will be so great that several individual columns will have a load of more than 5,000, or 10,000,000 pounds, in excess, the builders say, of "any previously constructed similar building."

The whole thing will represent a cost of $55,000,000 and the civilian occupation of Alfred E. Smith, former governor and presidential candidate, now as president of Empire State, Inc., a super-landlord.

Lodge Meetings Are Bad For Goat

other lodges are keeping Leonard Cat of the Isolated Order of Reindeer and alone's goat out at night.

Five nights a week, and sometimes six, Catalan complains, the fraternal brethren insist upon taking Nanny to the lodge hall for the edification of novices and the amusement of themselves while Nanny's two little kids blanch themselves to sleep on an empty stomach.

"It is not so much for myself that I mind about Nanny's night hours," Catalan says with a Neapolitan accent, "but it is for those kids. Ah, they blanch all day and they blanch all night but still Nanny gives only a pint of milk. The night life, it is not good for her."

Catalan bought Nanny from a farmer several months ago. Reminded of the delicious goat milk and fine cheese he used to get in his native land, he decided to establish a farm in his back yard so he acquired Nanny. At first her owner showered upon her by giving a quart of milk a day. But with the disappearance of green verdure and her sudden popularity among the lodge brothers, her production has diminished until it is almost negligible.

Alabama's Peanut Crop Tops Three Million Mark

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The lowly peanut has developed a three-million-dollar industry in Alabama.

The crop this year is growing alone on 277,000 acres, with thousands of other acres planted with corn. Based on current prices and a promised yield of 65,787 tons, the peanut crop will yield a return of $3,552,000.

This average, said F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, will yield a by-product of 150,000 tons of hay from the picker which usually sells for around $10 a ton. This will bring the crop's total to about $4,124,000.
